On appeal: As the cases noted below illustrate, parties regularly hire our appellate lawyers to either protect a trial court victory on subsequent appeal, or reverse or mitigate a loss through the appellate process. Our history of appellate success is based on our attention to critically analyzing the entire court record available for appeal, knowing and deploying the most favorable legal principles, formulating a winning appellate position, writing crisp appellate briefs, and persuasively presenting that winning position in oral argument before the appellate court judges.

Before appeal: Our appellate attorneys play a critical role in the underlying agency and lower court proceedings. Litigators handling agency and trial court proceedings often turn to our appellate team to ensure the agency and trial court record includes the factual evidence and legal arguments useful to solidify our client's position if there's a subsequent appeal.
