Shannon is a business, technology and intellectual property transactions attorney with a background advising both established and emerging growth companies. Her practice includes substantial work representing clients in the hospitality, technology, e-commerce and art industries.

Shannon focuses on helping clients navigate critical technology, intellectual property and other business transactions. Her roles have ranged from advising founders and executives in new ventures, taking on diverse responsibilities as part of a small in-house legal team in the e-commerce industry, to seamlessly blending with large in-house legal departments to provide strategic support to established companies.

She values integrating with her client's team and delivering responsive, business-savvy and pragmatic legal counsel.
